Experiments in Genetics

We have now initiated two of a series of these experiments which we hope and believe will add to the knowledge of inheritance in Orchids and have invited all of you who are interested in this phase of Orchid Culture to join us. We intend to keep a record of the results which will be eventually published when sufficient results are in and which we believe will be of distinct benefit to all of us. We did not sufficiently anticipate the great interest that would be evidenced by all of you in this project and are, therefore, still in the process of delivering the original orders received from the first two announcements. However, the more seedlings that are raised the more worthwhile the results become and we have gone ahead and planted a lot more seed from these two original crosses and are inviting all who have not as yet joined in these ventures to do so. We are asking you to report a short description of the color and form of the flowers as they bloom and other pertinent information on a questionnaire which we will supply. It is our goal now to be able to report on several thousand plants from each of these crosses.

No. 1 LH94 C Nellie Roberts 'Tyoh' (C Bow Bells x C Dowiana Aurea, Sheppeys Var.) x self..... $2.00 ea.; 6 for $9.00; 12 for $15.00

Here we have selled the best Nellie Roberts we have bloomed out of many. A large flower with a shape similar to and equal to the best Bow Bells. The color is mauve even though one parent is white with white and yellow lip and the other is yellow with colored lip. A self cross should, according to theory, recombine the chromosomes in the resulting offspring in many different combinations. The colors expected would be mauve, white with colored lip, white, yellow, and there could be others. We are extremely well pleased with the seedlings. They are very uniform growing with Bow Bells vigor and the leaves have a very heavy substance — just as firm as cardboard. Expect delivery in November.

No. 2 LH75 Potinara Tripoli 'Tyoh' AM-AOS (BLC Ishbel x SLC Romona) x self..... 3 for $6.00; 6 for $10.00

This flower has petals and sepals of a salmon-red color, lip of deep purple crimson. Good form and substance, a vigorous grower. Four different genera are involved: namely, Cattleya, Laelia, Brassavola and Sophronitis. In this self cross, the recombination of the chromosomes should result in a wide range of interesting types and some very fine flowers should result. Delivery of new orders probably not before spring 59. You may reserve seedlings and pay when ready for delivery, if you wish.

Additional Awarded and Exhibition Type Orchids

Seed and Pollen Bank

We are taking this opportunity to announce our new seed and pollen bank. After considerable time spent in experimentation, we have been able to keep seed fresh for a number of years. We have just recently bloomed a seedling, and after sowing and evaluating the results, replanted the original seed and obtained satisfactory germination. Pollen when properly stored can, we understand, be kept viable for at least a year and perhaps for a lot longer. We plan to continue this study. We have just recently issued a separate list of seed available and invite those interested to drop us a card and we will be glad to send this offering.

Blue Ribbon Orchid Flasks

During the past year we have offered from time to time transplanted 500cc flasks of outstanding crosses. The demand for these has been substantial and, as a result, we are now offering a greater selection. One of the greatest reasons for the success is the new formula we are using when these bottles are transplanted. This results in large, husky seedlings (50 or more) ready for community pots that are very easy to grow. A few are generally ready to go into individual pots direct from the flask. In addition, we furnish complete growing instructions; our time tested method.
